Tenses. In any writing it is important to master your tenses, but especially in Academic writing task 1, where you might need to compare data over different times, the past, present, and the future. The key is to look at the title of the chart as well as the information contained on both axes. This will give you an idea which tense to use.. Examples: If the time is one point in the past, for ...

EAS: Grammar for Writing starts at a relatively low level, recognizing that many students require continuing practice of common grammatical problems in academic writing (such as subject-verb agreement, or the use of present simple and present continuous). It gradually increases the level of challenge so that by the end of the book students can use appropriate grammatical structures to express more complex academic ideas.
